ROUND ROBIN IN BASKETBALL

Championship Ties Will Not Be Played Off—Bar Professionalism.

A round robin schedule will be played by basketball teams of the Missouri Valley Conference next season, it was decided at a meeting of the conference athletic directors in Lawrence, Kan., Saturday. This system of play proved satisfactory in its first trial in the season just passed the coaches and director say.

Faculty representatives of the conference also held a meeting at which it was decided that the conference does not favor the recognition of championships in the Valley sports. This is interpreted to mean that no ties, such as the one existing between Missouri and Kansas for basketball honors, will be played off in the future. Each basketball team is permitted to play eighteen games again next season by action of the conference representatives.

The faculty members also hit professionalism in college baseball and a resolution was adopted declaring that the conference ruling against college players engaging in professional baseball should be enforced more strictly than in the past. It was pointed out in the resolution that the faculty representatives invite definite charges of professionalism to be filed with them for investigation, and the present practice of rumors of professionalism without definite charges being made was decried.

AMES WINS TWO GAMES FROM TIGER BALL TEAM

Missouri Will End Season With Contests at Marshall Tomorrow and Wednesday.

The Tiger baseball team dropped their last two conference games to Ames by the score of 4 to 1 and 2 to 1. In the first game the Tigers got three men on bases but were unable to score. Taylor made the only score by hitting a home-run. Several errors made in the games by both sides were costly. Missouri got 16 hits to Ames 8, but could not deliver them in the pinch where they were needed to make runs.

The Tigers will leave tomorrow for Marshall where they will play Missouri Valley College tomorrow and Wednesday. These games should be close because the Missouri Valley College has one of the best baseball teams in the M. I. C. C. This will end the season for the baseball team.

The Rice Real Estate Company handling the Dorsey subdivision will be represented by Lawrence Dorsey, with offices at the Central Bank. Phone 743.—Adv.

WABADAS LOSE CLOSE GAME TO MEXICO, 4-2

Inability to Bunch Their Hits Defeats Columbia Boys at Senna Park.

The Wabadas yesterday afternoon lost a fast game to Mexico, 4 to 2. The local team made a brilliant start before a well-filled grandstand at Senna Park in Mexico, when in the first inning, with two men out, McMillan hit the first ball pitched to him to deep center for three bases. Billings hit a single to left scoring McMillan. This made one of the two earned runs in the game. The other came in the fourth when Thornton of Columbia tripled to left field and scored on Reagan's sacrifice.

Mexico did not get a hit until the fifth inning. Then, with one man out, Roder singled over second, and Funk was walked by Reagan, sending Roder to second. Scutts hit to Billings who tagged Roder at third. Reed hit to McMillan, but the ball was thrown over first, and Funk and Scutts scored while Reed took second. Jesse hit to McMillan who could not get him at first. Reed going to third. The Wabadas were beaten when Williams hit a long fly to center which lodged in a tree and allowed Reed and Jesse to score. Billings threw Quisenberry out at first, and the inning was ended. This also marked the end of the scoring for both teams.

Interest in the radio has become general during the last three months and Mr. Sevrance plans to keep pace with the public's latest hobby by purchasing several books on the subject, in addition to the magazine. The Wireless Age, a magazine, and a very limited number of books comprise the University's "radio library" at present.

"The Immigration Press and Its Control," is Newest Arrival.

Radio Broadcast, a monthly magazine devoted to the various phases of the radio science, will be added to the list of periodicals in the University Library. Henry O. Sevrance, University librarian, said today.

They were spending their honeymoon in Cannes. Owija slid her tall thin arms out of her peignor and scratched her ear. She thought of Tapi Oca and his millions. Millions on millions and motor cars. Her husband entered; he was drunk. "Oui-Oui," he said with a husk in his voice.

(Another row of dots, please) "It's too late, Jawan." The woman was leaning against the bureau panting hard. "The call of the old life is too much. I'm going back to Tapi Oca and his millions."

(Series of periods, please) God! His brain reeled. He caught her in his arms and prest her convulsed quivering form close to him. Kiss after kiss he rained on her trembling lips. "Too late," she murmured and slipped heavily to the floor. He kicked her gently in the face.

(Last time printer—more dots)

The house was very still. Owija came out of her room clad in a point lace chemisette and a traveling suit. She stepped on the cat but it did not deter her. Out of her door she went. The river shone silver in the moonlight. Soon all was quiet again.
